Group Helps To Expand Their Horizons

JCC, JSSA team up to provide social group for young adults with Asperger’s Syndrome.

By Amber Healy
The Connection

Robin Weisman knows her son, Corey, is an outgoing person who loves talking with his friends. But through his involvement with Going Places!, an activity group organized by the Jewish Social Services Agency and the Jewish Community Center of Northern Virginia, Corey has blossomed into a confident, social and happy young man, eager for the group’s monthly outings and to see the friends he’s made there.

“He just loves it,” she said. “His designated role with the group, he introduces new members because he knows so many of the people there.”

Going Places! is an activities group for young adults with Asperger’s Syndrome, a condition on the autism spectrum in which people may have difficulties understanding social cues and therefore have trouble interacting with others.

The club has been around for a few years, said Dawn Kaye, a clinical social worker with JSSA in Fairfax. There are 25-30 people who gather for the monthly events at the JCC, and the activity each month could be any one of a number of things — in the past, the group has gone bowling or painting pottery; earlier this month, the group went to a holiday lunch at Choices by Shawn, a restaurant in the City of Fairfax.

“For the young adults, between the ages of 18 and 30, their involvement in Going Places! might be the first social club they’ve felt comfortable joining, Kaye said.

“It might be the first time they are meeting friends and getting together outside the important it is until it hits home,” Huntzinger said.

The outings are organized in such a way that if one of the participants needs some assistance, Social workers accompany the group as well, so there’s someone to talk to if one of the participants needs some assistance.

Family Keeps Memory of Drunk-Driving Victim Alive

Friends, family raise money for memorial scholarship.

By Lisa Gillespie
The Connection

Two years ago on a November evening, a Cameron Schlifke of Fairfax was driving to pick his friends up on a Friday night. He wasn’t drinking. He was the designated driver for his college fraternity.

At a stoplight, a car slammed into the rear of his vehicle, sending him flying into another car. He was killed instantly.

Two years later, family and friends still remember Schlifke as an athletic, fun-loving and compassionate friend and son, worthy of the scholarship fund that has been set up in his name at Christopher Newport University, where he attended for three years.

On Dec. 26 at 9 p.m., Schlifke’s friends and family are hosting the first bowl-a-thon to raise money for the William Cameron Schlifke Endowed Memorial Scholarship, which will go toward a Christopher Newport University student’s tuition.

“I already see his legacy,” said Cameron’s mother Carol Schlifke, who considers his fraternity brothers in Pi Lambda Phi family.

She still thinks of her son often, but counts this bowl-a-thon as a positive memory to be made. “It comes in waves,” she said. Sometimes doing little things, like making egg salad sandwiches, he liked his soupy and runny, will make me sad.”

The scholarship was created to share Cameron Schlifke’s story and to continue on his love of learning. Friends and family hope to raise $25,000 in the next four years so that they would be able to award a scholarship of $2,500 each year.

Cameron Schlifke was the designated driver for his fraternity the night he was hit by Eric Fowler, who has been sentenced to five years in April for involuntary manslaughter. According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, 11,773 fatalities happened as a result of a driver with an illegal Blood Alcohol Level, a third of people who died in traffic crashes.

“I was shocked and devastated,” said Steven Brewer, Cameron’s best friend from high school who now lives in Arlington. “It was nothing we expected, and I know that there was never going to be anyone that could replace him. The verdict was fair because of what his family and what his friends went through.”

Brewer also says he’s become more aware of the problem of drunk driving. “Obviously, everyone is against it, but you don’t realize how important it is until it hits your home,” he said.

Ann Huntzinger grew up with Cameron when they were graduating, and he was coming in and some knew him. “I knew him,” Huntzinger said. “Some people knew Cameron Schlifke’s fraternity brothers. The night before Thanksgiving, she, Carol Schlifke and many of Cameron’s old friends got together at Spider Kelly’s in Arlington to reminisce and catch up.

“The fraternity boys have been so supportive and are always e-mail and texting,” Judy Huntzinger said. “Some people knew Cameron when they were graduating, and he was coming in and some knew him closely. This scholarship fund is one more way for us to stay connected and remember his life.”

Real Estate Rebound in 2012?

Though area real estate experts and economists discount the danger of a “double dip” recession in the Washington region, Secretary of Defense Robert Gates proposal to curb defense procurement is perhaps the greatest danger to Northern Virginia’s economic future, according to John McLain, deputy director of the George Mason University’s Center for Regional Analysis.

Speaking at an annual news briefing conducted by the Washington region real estate industry, McLain said that if Gates’s plan is successful to shave $100 billion, or 10 per cent a year for five years in defense procurement, it would result in a $3 billion a year “blow to our economy: That’s a risk for our economy,” McLain said.

This loss, he said, would far overshadow the $500 million a year impact of President Barrack Obama’s plan to reduce federal salaries by 2 percent over the next two years.

Though McLain pointed out that Gates will leave office next year and his program may not be successful, a large number of other proposals to cut defense spending exist and that though history has shown other plans to cut GDP have failed, this time they could be successful.

He said some businesses are making plans for alternative products to offset defense procurement. “They know that we can’t keep expanding government spending 10 percent a year as we have for the past 10 years.

McClain said the region added 43,000 jobs in the past seven months, more than job growth in New York, Los Angeles and Chicago.

He said that home ownership is likely to remain strong in Northern Virginia because family ownership is far greater than in Washington, D.C. and Baltimore, where greater numbers of single people live.

The very core of the region’s economic resistance to the impact of the national recession had been the fruits of the enormous federal procurement that flows to in region and most particularly to Northern Virginia, McLain said.

McClain and other speakers at the briefing do not see 2011 as the “come back” year in this region from the recession and think that the general real estate market will begin to return in 2012.

Indeed, for most of the year, 2010, housing sales in Northern Virginia outstripped 2009 6,486 to 6,067. But the sales tailed off in November, despite low interest rates, because of the end of the federal tax deduction program.

Vin Nguyen, chairman of the board of the Northern Virginia Association of Realtors, said he sees 2011 unfolding very much like 2010 if the interest rates remain low.

Week in Fairfax

Making the Season Bright

When money’s tight and people are just happy to have a roof over their heads, Christmas presents are often a luxury they just can’t afford. But thanks to FACETS (Fairfax Area Christian Emergency & Transitional Services), nearly 200 children last week got some help with their gifts.

For its 10th year, FACETS organized and hosted Holiday Sibling Shops so that children in need would be able to afford presents for their brothers and sisters. All year long, the nonprofit group helps families in need buy presents for their siblings and helped wrap them.

Last week’s events were at the Ragan Oaks Community Center near Fair Oaks, at Robinson Square near GMU and at Barrios Circle in Centreville. They also were holiday parties where the children ate snacks, made Christmas crafts, selected presents for their siblings and helped wrap them.

“Throughout November, FACETS collected donations from individuals, corporations and faith communities,” said Amy Marlow, FACETS assistant director of development. “They gave gifts for babies through kids age 18.”

The items collected included things such as footballs, dolls, games, toys, books, Cologne, makeup and $25 gift cards to stores such as Game Stop. Then about 80 children came to the sibling shop at Fair Oaks, another 80 went to the one at Robinson Square and some 15-20 were at the Centreville party.

“We thank all the community members and organizations who donated these hundreds of toys,” said Marlow. “What’s really special about these parties is that the kids get to come and pick out the gifts for their siblings, which is empowering for them to do and lets them experience the joy of giving to their family.”

The Ragan Oaks party was on Monday, Dec. 13, and the atmosphere was festive. Children munch on cookies, gumdrops and popcorn, as well as special, sesame-seed-coated doughnuts made by a community resident from Sudan. And while they snacked, adult volunteers helped them create crepe-paper Christmas wreaths and beaded snowflake ornaments.

“This is also about the community coming together and having fun,” said Marlow. “Most of the children’s parents are here, and everyone lives in this apartment complex, so it’s really neighborhood-based. We want to take this spirit of the holidays and express it all year round, because the need continues.”

Because of the tough economy, she said, FACETS is serving about 20 percent more children this year than last year. “FACETS serves 5,000 individuals a year throughout Fairfax County,” said Marlow. “It provides emergency services for families and adults in danger of becoming homeless. Ragan Oaks is an affordable-housing community, and families here are living on about $18,000 a year for a family of four.”

Fairfax residents Kati and J.P. Hesford organized last Monday’s party and brought the craft materials, most of the snacks and the wrapping paper. The party for preschool and elementary-age children was from 5-6 p.m., with middle- and high-school students having their own, holiday celebration from 6-7 p.m.

A mother of four, Shannon Tatem was there helping her two youngest boys choose presents for their older siblings. “It’s a good concept,” she said. “I like the idea of the kids exchanging gifts for each other; otherwise, they wouldn’t be able to. And they had fun, too.”

Each child received a number and was then called to pick out presents, so their siblings didn’t see what they were getting. “There’s also a serious purpose to these events,” added Marlow, gesturing toward the tables full of new toys. “Having these types of gifts donated to these families allows the families to stretch their money for basic needs like food, rent, utilities and transportation. It’s also a relief for the parents because it helps them to maintain financial stability when they’re struggling to make ends meet.”

Connolly Celebrates

On Dec. 10, U.S. Rep. Gerry Connolly (D-11) and his supporters celebrated Connolly's re-election to the U.S. House of Representatives at Fairfax's Old Town Hall. Connolly said that principles and integrity would not be forgotten and that he would remain available at all times to his constituents.

essential to take the time to consider the options available before drinking and deciding to drive. Making arrangements to rely on a designated driver, calling a cab, or spending the night all are alternatives that police recommend to help prevent tragedies resulting from impaired driving.

The police also strongly encourage people to take advantage of WRAP’s SoberRide campaign. Free taxi rides (up to a $30 fare) began Dec. 17 and will be offered through Saturday, Jan. 1, 2011 at 6 a.m. To participate, call 1-800-200-8294 (TAXI), or #8294 for customers of AT&T wireless telephones. People must be at least 21 years old to use SoberRide.

Santa and his friends Visit Inova Fairfax.

Santa and Mrs. Claus, Frosty, Rudolph and some of their friends from the Fairfax County Police Motor Squad and the Fairfax County Sheriff's office made a visit to the Inova Fairfax Hospital for Children on Thursday, Dec. 16.

Started as a philanthropic effort among the Fairfax County Motor Squad, Santa’s Ride has become a countywide toy drive involving more than 100 volunteers from several local law enforcement agencies.

For several weeks in late November and early December, donation sites at police stations and at designated elementary schools in each of the eight districts in Fairfax County collect new, unwrapped gifts. Santa, on a motorcycle, weather permitting, with his police escort and a box truck, visits the elementary schools that collected presents and thanks the children involved, and then turns around and delivers them to the children in need. This year, Santa and his friends delivered them to Inova Fairfax Hospital for Children, the Georgetown Lombardi Cancer Center, the Ronald McDonald House, the Reston F.I.S.H. and children at Mount Calvary Baptist Church.

Cuccinelli: ‘Christmas Came Early This Year’

Fund raiser turns into celebration for Virginia attorney general after health care decision.

By Jeanne Theismann
The Connection

Less than 48 hours after federal district Judge Henry E. Hudson ruled that the provision in the health care reform law requiring individuals to purchase insurance is unconstitutional, Virginia’s Attorney General Ken Cuccinelli, architect of the controversial litigation, was savoring his first-round victory at a private fund raiser Dec. 15 in Northern Virginia.

“The last 48 hours have been tightly scheduled talking to a lot of different folks,” Cuccinelli said. “Some of them are hostile, some are friendly and some are actually objective as I’m trying to explain to people why we are carrying the case forward.” While many were surprised at the outcome, Cuccinelli was not.

“The shock of actually winning is fun,” Cuccinelli said. “I don’t mean my shock, I mean other people’s. We’re not shocked at all. We analyzed this closely before we ever made a move on it. Everybody else just presumed the outcome.” Despite the international spotlight on the case, Cuccinelli has taken a back seat in the courtroom to Virginia’s solicitor general, who will argue the case when it is expected to go before the Supreme Court in 2011-12.

“Our solicitor general is one of those guys — not valid with other discounts or sales.

Cuccinelli said. “Some of them are friendly, some are actually objectively as I’m trying to explain to people why we are carrying the case forward.”

“The shock of actually winning is fun,” Cuccinelli said. “I don’t mean my shock, I mean other people’s. We’re not shocked at all. We analyzed this closely before we ever made a move on it. Everybody else just presumed the outcome.” Despite the international spotlight on the case, Cuccinelli has taken a back seat in the courtroom to Virginia’s solicitor general, who will argue the case when it is expected to go before the Supreme Court in 2011-12.

“Our solicitor general is one of those guys who people frequently say ‘that’s the smartest person I’ve ever been in a room with,’” Cuccinelli said of E. Duncan Getchell. “And because he’s not the attorney general, he can spend more time with the details planning for the curveballs. I would love to argue it and am capable of arguing it, but he’s the one who knows the case law and history, which is critically important.”

In addition to the health care case, Cuccinelli talked about other significant issues his office has tackled. “Like the health care case, the EPA case is about protecting the constitution,” Cuccinelli said of the pending suit against the Environmental Protection Agency’s move to regulate greenhouse gases. “It’s also about the rule of law and the economy. Typically, we are trying to support Virginia’s good business environment.”

ANOTHER SUCCESS for Cuccinelli was allowing absentee ballots that arrive after Election Day to be counted. “Protecting the voting rights for our military members deployed abroad is important,” Cuccinelli said. “We have registrars who don’t get absentee ballots out on time so now for the first time we allow people’s votes that arrive after Election Day to be counted.”

According to Cuccinelli, the races to watch in 2011 will be in Northern Virginia.

“I believe we’re going to have a great candidate in Janet Howell’s district — Caren Merrick,” Cuccinelli said. “It’s the Prince William-Loudoun swath we’re going to get a new senate seat and that open seat is going to be very interesting regardless of where it lands.”

Cuccinelli, who has remained in the area since taking office earlier this year, was happy to be back where he considers home. “I get mocked in other parts of the state but this is where I grew up,” Cuccinelli said. “This is where I went to school, this is where my kids have grown up and where they’re going to school. My wife did the same thing. We’re those rarities — we actually grew up here and stayed here and we’re very happy with that.”
We wish our readers, our clients and everyone who lives, works, studies, plays, shops or pursues their avocations here all the best over this holiday week and beyond into the New Year. Thank you for making the Connection a part of your week, a part of your year.

Alternatives to Drinking and Driving

A recent ride-along with a Northern Virginia police officer gave Connection reporter Alex McLeay a chance to investigate some of the methods and mission to get drunk drivers off the road. (See Getting Drunk Drivers Off the Streets, in Dec. 15's Reston Connection, http://connectionnewspapers.com/article.asp?article=34997&page=71&cat=104)

Among other things on the night of the ride-along, the officer encountered an apparently drunk driver who had fallen asleep behind the wheel waiting to make a right turn, his car running, his turn signal blinking and vomit evident down the outside of the driver's side door.

It's enough to make you want to stay home. With the season for holiday parties comes the increased incidence of driving under the influence, with drunk driving arrests up more than 70 percent compared to other times of year. In 2010, Fairfax County Police have investigated more than 660 alcohol related accidents. In 2008 in Fairfax County, there were more than 3,100 arrests for driving under the influence.

Don't take the risk. Plan ahead, leave your car at home, take public transportation, arrange for a designated driver, or choose to abstain if a designated driver isn't available.

If you but find yourself in the unfortunate position of drinking without a safe way home on your own this holiday season, the Washington Regional Alcohol Program has provided you with a safety net called SoberRide. Take your number with you when you head out, and be sure any young adults (must be 21 or over) in your family are similarly armed.

WRAP's 2010 Holiday SoberRide program is available now through 6 a.m., Saturday, Jan. 1, 2011. To receive a free cab ride home (up to a $30 fare), call 800-200-8294. You must be 21 or older. (Callers are responsible for anything over $30.)

Saving Lives, Saving Money

To the Editor:

Recent editorial (“October: Breast Cancer Awareness Month”, Connection, Oct. 13-19, 2010) includes several points that deserve special emphasis because they can shape both our attitudes and our behavior regarding breast cancer. The first point is: “...there is just one person in charge of your health care, and that person is you.” While that statement may seem obvious today among educated people with sufficient health insurance, it still resonates as a revelation to many who lack access to health care and regard illness and wellness passively – as forces we react to instead of managing. However our health care reform legislation evokes a primary objective must be that we take ownership of our own health – knowing our risk factors, getting regular preventive check-ups, and adopting good nutrition and lifestyle choices.

That is also the second point worth emphasizing: “...early detection really can save lives.” The national Prevent Cancer Foundation based in Alexandria (www.preventcancer.org) advocates and funds research and outreach on early detection and prevention programs for treatable cancers, among them prostate, colon, cervical, skin, and breast cancers. As a cancer survivor, I know the importance of routine check-ups including regular mammograms. Today a mammogram can detect barely visible tumors that a woman might not be able to “feel” for another decade.

Editor Mary Kimm had a more disturbing statistic to report. According to the Virginia office of the Every Woman's Life program, the survival rate for breast cancer is 98 percent if diagnosed and only 26 percent if diagnosed at a later stage. Likewise, the survival rate for cervical cancer is 92 percent if diagnosed early and only 15 percent if diagnosed late.

“A woman’s race or economic status in the United States should not affect her chances of surviving breast cancer, but they do.” This point is worth repeating, because in Virginia poor women must go to one of 26 health care centers in the state to be screened for breast or cervical cancer if they wish to have the cost of a positive diagnosis covered through Medicaid. Given their lack of accessibility to diagnostic centers, limited resources, and fear of unknown outcomes, these women are often not diagnosed until they have a late stage cancer. Beyond the devastating personal impacts, the cost to the state is substantial: early stage breast cancer treatment is about $28,000 as opposed to almost $44,000 for late stage cancer. The disparities for cervical cancer are greater: $11,700 as opposed to $38,500 for late stage treatment.

In 2009 as a legislator, I introduced HB220 to establish a non-reverting, interest-bearing fund for underserved Virginia women diagnosed with breast or cervical cancer. The bill passed unanimously, and was signed into law. Now, The Breast and Cervical Prevention and Treatment Fund (BCCP) may receive private donations that may not be diverted to other state funds and are matched two-to-one by federal funds established under a law passed in 2000. Once the Virginia fund reaches a self-sustaining threshold, the legislature can remove the requirement that poor women must be screened at one of the 26 centers.

Instead, they can receive their screenings close to their homes, and qualify for treatment if diagnosed under the current Every Woman's Life program. We will at a minimum, double the number of women treated early for these two diseases.

If you would like to help Virginia women achieve the promise of early detection and treatment for breast or cervical cancer during October’s Breast Cancer Awareness Month – or at any time – you may send a check made out to The Department of Medical Services, Fiscal Division/BCCPT, 600 Broad St. – 8th floor, Richmond, Virginia 23219.

Together we can save lives, save money, and save a cause worth celebrating.

Creationism Vs. Evolution

To the Editor:

Many argue that teaching creationism in schools violates our First Amendment rights and the principle of keeping church and state separate. If both ideas were taught in the classroom, the school would not be favoring one or the other but simply teaching two theories of how life came to be on the Earth. Did a higher being create us with a purpose for the world or did we randomly evolve?

Both creationism and evolution should be taught in public schools. Instead of all of the debate about which single one should or should not be taught. There should be an introduction of both theories. In this way, each individual could come to his own conclusion about each of the theories and which one he or she chooses to believe. It is important for students to learn and know where and how human life formed. And if parents... oppose exposing their children to such ideas, they could opt their children out of that portion of the class in the same way a child can be opted out of sex education.

The U.S. Supreme Court has decided that it is unconstitutional to prohibit a teacher’s right to teach evolution, but in public schools it can be taught only as scientific fact. Teaching creationism is entirely off limits. The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that it is unconstitutional to require teachers who teach evolution to also teach creationism. In public school science classes, educators may only teach scientific explanations for life on Earth. Creationism is can only be discussed in comparative religion classes as an example of how some religious groups believe life began on Earth. It may not however, be taught as scientific fact, like evolution is. Teaching both would open students’ minds to both theories. Merriam Webster defines “faith” as: a belief that is not based on truth. Neither creationism nor evolution can be proved, which is why they are theories. So it is safe to say that believing in either one requires faith.

New Italian restaurant
latest eatery from Great American Restaurants.

Ozzie’s Corner Italian has been open less than three months, but it’s already a big hit with the customers. It’s also another success for Great American Restaurants (GAR), which now operates 11 restaurants and one bakery in Northern Virginia.

Featuring casual Italian cuisine in an atmosphere reminiscent of New York’s Little Italy, Ozzie’s is the company’s first Italian restaurant. It’s at 11880 Grand Commons Ave. in the Fairfax Corner shopping center, not far from GAR’s Coastal Flats restaurant.

“Coastal Flats does so well, we felt we could risk cannibalizing some of its business and do something good here,” said GAR Chairman Randy Norton. “We also love to be near movies and to have the possibility of a strong, lunch business, and we have that with the [Fairfax County] Government Center nearby.”

But Ozzie’s wasn’t opened hastily; and a great deal of research went into the food.

“We ate at different Italian restaurants around the country and picked things we liked and thought our guests would like, too,” Norton said.

The restaurant was named after Chris “Ozzie” Osborn, vice president of kitchen operations for the whole company. He created GAR’s signature rolls made of fried dough balls and was instrumental in developing his namesake’s menu.

“We do a limited number of things, but they’re all great,” he said. “My favorite is our Bolognese sauce. It’s really full-bodied and has terrific flavor. It pairs up wonderfully with the pappardelle pasta.”

Osborn has also a fan of the Veal Milanese. “It’s rich and buttery, simple but elegant,” he said. With GAR since 1981, Osborn said, “This is all new for us, top to bottom.”

He said fine-tuning the details just right was time-consuming, but worth it. “I’m as much a civil engineer as a chef,” said Osborn. So he was involved in designing the kitchen flow, selecting the equipment, orchestrating how each meal’s made, developing production schedules and “fielding the right team of people” to work there.

His greatest satisfaction, he said, was “seeing it all come together,” especially the kitchen.

To Go
Ozzie’s Corner Italian is open Sunday-Monday, 11 a.m.-10 p.m.; and Friday-Saturday, 11 a.m.-midnight. Lunch and dinner are served daily. Call-ahead seating is recommended; 751-321-8000.

Little Italy Comes to Fairfax Corner

New Italian restaurant
latest eatery from Great American Restaurants.

By Bonnie Hobbs
The Connection

Ozzie’s Corner Italian has been open less than three months, but it’s already a big hit with the customers. It’s also another success for Great American Restaurants (GAR), which now operates 11 restaurants and one bakery in Northern Virginia.

Featuring casual Italian cuisine in an atmosphere reminiscent of New York’s Little Italy, Ozzie’s is the company’s first Italian restaurant. It’s at 11880 Grand Commons Ave. in the Fairfax Corner shopping center, not far from GAR’s Coastal Flats restaurant.

“Coastal Flats does so well, we felt we could risk cannibalizing some of its business and do something good here,” said GAR Chairman Randy Norton. “We also love to be near movies and to have the possibility of a strong, lunch business, and we have that with the [Fairfax County] Government Center nearby.”

But Ozzie’s wasn’t opened hastily; and a great deal of research went into the food.

“We ate at different Italian restaurants around the country and picked things we liked and thought our guests would like, too,” Norton said.

The restaurant was named after Chris “Ozzie” Osborn, vice president of kitchen operations for the whole company. He created GAR’s signature rolls made of fried dough balls and was instrumental in developing his namesake’s menu.

“We do a limited number of things, but they’re all great,” he said. “My favorite is our Bolognese sauce. It’s really full-bodied and has terrific flavor. It pairs up wonderfully with the pappardelle pasta.”

Osborn has also a fan of the Veal Milanese. “It’s rich and buttery, simple but elegant,” he said. With GAR since 1981, Osborn said, “This is all new for us, top to bottom.”

He said fine-tuning the details just right was time-consuming, but worth it. “I’m as much a civil engineer as a chef,” said Osborn. So he was involved in designing the kitchen flow, selecting the equipment, orchestrating how each meal’s made, developing production schedules and “fielding the right team of people” to work there.

His greatest satisfaction, he said, was “seeing it all come together – from a concept to putting it on paper, making plans and seeing the finished product. And through it all, you don’t know exactly how it’ll work until you do it.”

All the pasta is made in house, and Norton says the Crazy Lasagna is, by far, the most popular entrée. “It’s not made in advance and cooked in a big pan,” he said. “It’s assembled to order and made with pappardelle pasta, which is a long, wide noodle. It has meatballs on it and is served in a skillet.”

Ozzie’s Brick Chicken, at $15, is also a big seller. A wood-grilled, boneless half chicken comes with lemon-rosemary sauce, garlic mashed potatoes and grilled rapini, in the broccoli family.

Another customer favorite is the Beef Short Rib Ragù, for $21. “The meat is extremely tender and flavorful,” said Norton. “There are onions and mushrooms, and it all goes together very well on the polenta we serve it on.”

Seafood includes a hickory-grilled, fish of the day, plus crab, salmon and bass dishes. And the most popular appetizer is the Arancini — fried risotto balls stuffed with fontina cheese and Italian sausage and served with marinara sauce. “Our first Saturday, we sold 195 of them, which surprised us all,” said Norton.

Also a menu star is the $16 Sunday Salad with Meatballs. “In old, Italian homes, families would get together Sundays for a big meal,” explained Norton. “They’d take what was left in the refrigerator and throw it into a salad. We thought it was a lot of fun, and people love the meatballs.”

Topping the dessert selections is Tiramisu Ho Ho for $7. “It’s not the typical tiramisu, but our own version,” said Norton. “It’s rolled up and has more subtle flavors, plus more dark chocolate and caramel than anything else.”

Another unusual dessert is prunes stewed in red wine, cinnamon and sugar and served with mascarpone cheese and candied pecans. “We saw them in a little, Italian restaurant in New York City,” said Norton. “There’s a really great combination of flavors.”

The ambience is 1900s Little Italy. “We looked at old movie clips and stills and tried to recreate the look,” said Norton. “So the bar top is white marble and the mosaic floors are authentic to the period. There are iron columns in the entryway and custom-made, bronze lighting fixtures.”

Most eye-catching of all, though, are the murals painted by an artist in Maine. Colorful and realistic, they stretch across one wall and over the kitchen archway to the other side. The scenes depict the annual, street festival of San Gennaro in Little Italy, as well as Sonny’s wedding from the movie, “The Godfather.”

Painted in are Osborn, plus the Godfather. The restaurant seats 250 and offers three dining areas, including one that’s raised. “It’s unusual for us,” said Norton. “But it’s more intimate and creates a different dining experience from Coastal Flats. I think people will try us because they have confidence in our brand and, hopefully, they’ll come back.”

Dining there recently for a “girls’ day out” lunch was Frances Carson of Little Rocky Run. She had the Roasted Chicken Salad with Artichokes and said it tasted “like a good, Mediterranean salad. I’m Italian, and it’s something different from the usual salad. I also love the atmosphere and Italian flair.”

Diane Owens of Fairfax came with her daughter, Jennifer Connors, also of Fairfax, and both enjoyed the Roasted Chicken Panini. “I wanted something good to eat, and the cheese and chicken tasted good,” said Connors. “I’d recommend Ozzie’s to others; it has a nice ambience and a good menu.”

Addie Owens: “It’s comfortable here, and I’d come back again because the food and service were both good.”

Where Music and Technology Merge

Fairfax Academy students perform at fifth annual MCTFest.

By Chelsea Muth
The Connection

Fairfax Academy’s fifth annual MCTFest turned Northern Virginia Community College’s Richard J. Ernst Cultural Center into an intimate, independent music house. All original compositions, the students’ work, has premiered almost a dozen MCT student compositions.

Annandale Symphony, conducted by Chris Johnson, a composer, pianist and conductor, has been teaching the students about the music industry.

“We’re Band Number One,” introduced the lead singer of the first band. “This is Song Number One,” he said. The four MCT students — on drums, guitar, vocals, and bass — broke into a confident indie rock piece. Throughout the night, more than a dozen MCT’s 60 students took the stage, either solo or in collaboration. All original compositions, the students’ music ranged from rock, to folk, to metal, to classical.

Fairfax Academy administrator Dave Saunders explained why this event was such a rare treat. “When you walk into their classroom, it’s just a classroom of computers and keyboards,” he said. “It’s full of music, but its silent because they’ve plugged into headphones.”

The only headphones at MCTFest were worn by the Academy’s film program, there to document the event.

Woodson High School junior Arjun Baxter was eager to debut his two-person band, the Showerheads. “We’re a blend of hard metal and blues and light airy vocals,” said Baxter. He met his band-mate Nate O’Lear at baseball practice. It wasn’t until the two turned up in the same MCT class that they realized their shared love of music. After school, they began teaming up to write songs and perform. “There are no other programs like this at the secondary level,” said MCT teacher Chris Johnson. “We’re really forging new ground.”

Johnson, a composer, pianist and conductor, has been teaching the course for 10 years.

Computer bound, MCT students learn to write music for video games and film. They meet professionals and learn about the business and entrepreneurial side of music production. They compose and occasionally jam in class. The MVCC Annandale Symphony, conducted by Chris Johnson, has premiered almost a dozen MCT student compositions.

According to Dave Saunders, MCT is the most popular program at Fairfax Academy, a collegial out

Fairfax Man Pleads Guilty of Sexual Offense

Victim was 13-year-old girl.

By Bonnie Hobbs
The Connection

A 52-year-old Fairfax man is facing some 57-71 months in federal prison after pleading guilty to trying to entice a 13-year-old girl to have sex with him. He is Joshua Nabatkhorian of the 4000 block of Hunt Road, and he entered his plea Dec. 3 in U.S. District Court in Alexandria.

In a statement of facts accompanying his plea agreement, he formally acknowledged that, had his case gone to trial, the prosecution could have proved its allegations against him. According to the document, from Oct. 26-Nov. 4, 2009, he used a cell phone to send at least 26 text messages of a sexual nature to the teen, who was a family friend.

Nabatkhorian referred to her as his “beautiful slave,” “wild girl” and “loyal disciple” and told her she must obey all his commands. But around Nov. 4, the girl stopped responding to his messages.

Three days later, her mother found the messages on the victim’s phone and notified Fairfax County Police. She then allowed police to use her daughter’s phone and take over her online persona.

Nabatkhorian continued to send more than a dozen messages to that phone, from Nov. 5-12, even though the teen was still not answering him. And from Nov. 12-17, he communicated — not only via telephone text messages — but with e-mail, plus online instant messages. However, unknown to him, he was actually expressing his feelings to an undercover police detective posing as the teen.

According to the statement, at all times, Nabatkhorian believed he was still speaking to the 13-year-old girl.

He said he wanted the teen to be his girlfriend and told her, “Do not trust anybody, even your best friends. This is our secret love.”

On more than a dozen occasions between Nov. 12-15, Nabatkhorian asked if they could be alone together. And on Nov. 15, stated the document, he discussed the specific, sexual activities he wanted to do with her.

He also attempted to persuade her to meet him at a shopping center near her Fairfax home. He told her he wanted to take her to an apartment so they could have sex, and they agreed to meet Nov. 17, 2009, at 1 p.m., at the shopping center.

However, according to the statement, on Nov. 16, Nabatkhorian instead reserved a room at the Ritz Carlton in Pentagon City for the night of Nov. 17. On the reservation, he requested a red rose on the pillow, chocolate-covered strawberries and champagne in the room.

Also on Nov. 16, the teen asked him during a chat session to explain what he wanted to do when they were alone together. Nabatkhorian then detailed several sexual positions that he wished to explore with her during their meeting. That same day, around 1 p.m., Nabatkhorian arrived at the Fairfax shopping center for what he’d thought would be a romantic rendezvous and was instead greeted by police, who arrested him. Authorities found the underwear, condoms and perfume in his car.

The case was later turned over to the federal government for prosecution. According to the plea agreement filed Dec. 3 in U.S. District Court, Nabatkhorian could be given anywhere from 57-71 months behind bars (approximately 4-1/2 years to nearly six years) when he’s sentenced, Feb. 11, 2011. Since his conviction is for attempting to entice a minor to have sex with him, he must also register as a sex offender.
Legislators Tackle Tank Farm

Recent oil spills have raised alarms about storage facility.

By Julia O’Donoghue
The Connection

Elected officials are pursuing new regulations and tighter restrictions from the state and federal governments for a gasoline storage facility near the southeastern border of the City of Fairfax and Fairfax County.

The facility, often called the tank farm, has long drawn the ire of local residents. An oil leak from the farm, where several companies store gasoline, contaminated a large swath of the Mantua community in Fairfax County during the early 1990s.

More recently, a tanker truck associated with the farm overturned corner of Pickett Road and Main Street/Route 236 and spilled approximately 4,000 gallons of oil into a local sewer drain at the end of August.

Most of the oil was cleaned up, though not before it made its way into a local creek that runs through Mantua.

A smaller spill, again involving an accident with a tanker truck, occurred about a month later in September. Earlier in 2010, the tank farm also had problems with an underground leak, during which 14,000 gallons of diesel fuel escaped into the ground.

“We are brainstorming about what we can do to make that tank farm safer. It is just not OK for these things to be happening. It is located right in the middle of a dense residential area,” said Fairfax County Chairwoman Sharon Bulova (D-At-large).

U.S. REP GERRY CONNOLLY (D-11) is seeking the assistance of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to clamp down on the facility.

“Any owner of a tank farm with this many oil spills should have either cleaned up its act or shut down, but this tank farm continues to endanger our neighborhood,” wrote Connolly in a letter to Lisa Jackson, the Environmental Protection Agency’s administrator, on Nov. 18.

The congressman lives in Mantua and was president of the local Mantua Citizens Association in the early 1990s, when the farm’s oil leak contaminated his neighborhood.

The congressman asked Jackson to investigate the tank farm and “take all possible steps” to prevent future oil spills. If possible, the Environmental Protection Agency should try to shut the tank farm down permanently.

“The negligence of the tank farm’s owner continues to endanger the health of everyone who lives near the tank farm, in addition to the health of the Annokink Creek watershed,” wrote Connolly in his letter.

He also welcomed any suggestions for legislation he could introduce on Capitol Hill that might help get the tank farm shuttered.

According to City of Fairfax tax records, the tank farm is made up several parcels, which are each owned by different corporations. The owners of record are: TransMontaigne Products, Product Services Inc. of Denver, Colo.; Citgo Petroleum Corp., of Tulsa, Okla.; TransMontaigne Operating Company, L.P; American Oil Company; and TRMI Holdings Inc., in care of Motiva Enterprises L.L.C.

Jim Hinkle, current president of the Manuta Citizens Association, said he was appreciative of Connolly’s efforts, particularly the congressman’s focus on wanting to shut down the tank farm permanently.

“We have just had multiple spills recently. During one, some of the oil ran over into our neighborhood and into people’s backyards,” said Hinkle.

“The fact that they have had these multiple accidents means that they need to concentrate more on what they are doing over there,” he said.

Del. David Bulova (D-36) also plans to introduce legislation during the 2011 Virginia General Assembly session that would give the community more safeguards against the tank farm.

David Bulova’s first bill would call for increased penalties on tanker truck drivers that speed or engage in other reckless behavior. Bulova said several of his constituents regularly complain of tanker trucks driving too fast and running red lights along Little River Turnpike/Route 236.

“The tank farm is less than quarter of a mile away from Frost [Middle School] and Woodson [High School]. When we have an accident, it can put the students in jeopardy,” said David Bulova.

The delegate also submitted another bill that would require all above-ground storage tanks at tank farms in Virginia to be upgraded.

“After the Mantua spill in the early 1990s, the state required all new tank farms to use the latest technology but, ironically older tank farms, including the one in the City of Fairfax, were not obligated to purchase new equipment, he said.

According to David Bulova, the above-ground tanks at the Fairfax facility have not been improved significantly since they were first installed in the 1960s and 1970s. They also only get inspected once every 10 years.

“The capacity for those storage tanks is a million gallons or more,” said David Bulova.

VIRGINIA’S DEPARTMENT of Environmental Quality is also in negotiations with the tank farm owner to impose new penalties when a leak, spill or other type of incident occurs, said Sharon Bulova.

In addition to fines, the tank farm would have to make expensive upgrades to its equipment if there was another accident.

According to Sharon Bulova, the tank farm should move all of its valves above ground, which would make it easier to tell if a leak or a spill occurs. Currently, some of its valves are below ground.

“It is a costly thing for them to make that sort of change,” said Sharon Bulova.

Both county and city officials think the tank farm should be responsible for reimbursing the localities for clean up and emergency response related to an oil spill, she said.

The City of Fairfax has committed to trying to maximize the taxes and fees it can impose on the tank farm.

That money would then be used to pay for state-of-art equipment needed for tank farm-related hazards and accidents. The city would also use the revenue to step up enforcement at the facility, said Mayor Robert Lederer.

“We are looking at what the city’s ability is to maximize user fees at the tank farm,” he said.

“We want to make the tank farm as safe as possible,” said Lederer.

George Mason Meeting Explores Jewish Traditions

Students learn about faith, shared history.

On Friday, Dec. 3, more than 90 George Mason University students, of whom about 50 percent were Jewish, attended the first-ever Shabbaton, Shabbat & Speakers, which took place at the Fairfax campus.

The evening’s goal was to empower the university’s Jewish students and to expose non-Jewish people to Judaism and to the beauty of Israel. The evening began with student-led Shabbat services that were followed by Shabbat 101, a session led by Sue Aft, wife of Congregation Adat Reyim’s Rabbi Bruce Aft, and Becca Elliott, GMU Hillel’s student president, that explored Shabbat through the senses of taste and smell.

Following a Shabbat dinner, the event hosted treats with surprise gift cards to a local coffee shop and stress balls as a way to survive finals week.

The evening concluded with three breakout sessions with guest speakers. Marvin Klemow of Fairfax led a discussion on technology in Israel. Klemow has been associated with Israel Aerospace Industries, Israel’s most sophisticated high-tech company for 40 years. He was vice president of its Washington, D.C. office for 32 years and then served as a consultant for eight years.

Joelle Kelenson, school-aged services coordinator at the JCC of Northern Virginia with a master’s degrees in Judaic studies and science and social work from Columbia University, spoke about Kabbalah and Israel.

Michaela Cohen, Northern Virginia’s community shliacha (emissary), a community funded program and the Israel Fellow on campus, spoke about Israeli Jewish holidays such as Mimuna, a traditional holiday of the Moroccan Jews that celebrates the end of Passover; Yom Ha’Atzmaut, Israel Independence Day; and Yom Ha’Zikaron, a holiday that honors fallen Israeli soldiers.

“It was an inspiring event that made me realize how much we, as a small Jewish population on campus, can do to make an impact,” said Cohen, who has worked with the GMU Hillel for nearly two years.

Start of Season Proves To Be a Challenge for Some

Local girls' and boys' teams wrapping up their pre-holiday schedules.

By Rich Sanders
The Connection

The early season record is not what the Lake Braddock Secondary girls' basketball team would want at this point in its pre-holiday, early season schedule, but the Bruins could be a better team in the long run for having played stiff competition over the season's first month.

“We’ve played some pretty tough non-district opponents so far, including Westfield,” said Lake Braddock head coach Leigh Kampman, whose team was 1-4 going into this week’s action.

“We are 1-0 in the [Patriot] District right now, and I believe these first few games against tougher opponents will only help us in the end.”

The district win came on Dec. 10 when the Bruins defeated visiting WT. Woodson, 58-54. Natalie Burley, a 6-foot-2-inch sophomore forward, led Lake Braddock with 15 points in the win. Other scoring contributions came from junior guard Hannah Abouhousn (8 points), freshman guard/forward Marcia Altman (7) and sophomore guard Morgan Stearns (7). Logan Russell, a senior forward, and senior guard Maggie Collins both scored five points in the win, while Caroline Young, a senior guard/forward, and senior forward Shelby Sheridan scored four each. Freshman guard Allie Snow scored three in a Lake Braddock at-tack which saw nine different players get into the scoring column.

For Woodson (3-3), Keara Finnerty, a sophomore guard, scored a game-high 22 points, while sophomore forward Taylor Hayes was also in double figures with 18 points. Also for the Cavaliers, Bryce Debolt, a sophomore guard, scored six points and both Amy Sitts, a junior forward, and sophomore forward Katie Hayes scored four.

Lake Braddock trailed Woodson, 15-9, after one quarter and still trailed by six, 44-38, at the end of three quarters. But the Bruins put things together in the final quarter, outscoring Woodson, 20-10, to earn the comeback win.

Lake Braddock had opened the season with a pair of losses — 41-29 to visiting Centreville on Dec. 3, and a 53-39 defeat at Herndon on Dec. 7 — before earning its first win over Woodson. But following the victory over the Cavaliers, the Bruins lost their next two games, 41-31 over visiting Westfield, the defending Concorde District champions, on Dec. 14, and 44-23 at Robinson (5-2) Friday night, Dec. 17. In the loss to the Rams, Russell was the Bruins’ leading scorer with seven points. Robinson, meanwhile, had big games from Tyler Hansen (17 points) and Megan Green (11).

Lake Braddock is working hard to improve. Kampman has had her squad focus on playing solid defense night-in and night-out.

“Every game we focus on the positives and try to build off of them,” said Kampman. “We have different people step up at different times, depending on the match-ups. We really emphasize playing a team game and have focused a lot of our attention on our defense. As I always tell my team, ‘Defense should never have an off-day.’”

Lake Braddock was scheduled to play its final game prior to the Christmas holiday on Tuesday, Dec. 21. Over the holidays, Lake Braddock will take part in the Lady Rebels Winter Classic at Fairfax High School from Dec. 28-30.

“I would like to see us win the tournament so we can carry that momentum into district play,” said coach Kampman. Woodson, meanwhile, will participate at the Mardela Tournament in Mardela Springs, Md., Dec. 29-30. The Cavaliers, under head coach Pat Neri, have wins this season over Washington-Lee, Fairfax High and Lee High. The losses have come to Robinson, Lake Braddock and Mount Vernon.

In Woodson’s win over Lee, a 57-34 home triumph on Dec. 17, Finnerty scored 30 points. Hayes scored 13 for the Cavaliers and Katie added nine points. For Lee (0-4), Megan Cox scored 11 points.

Woodson was scheduled to host TC Williams on Tuesday, Dec. 21 in its final game before the holidays.

The Lee High boys' basketball team, a young squad this season, was 0-3 going into this week's non-district home loss to Oakton on Dec. 21.

“I think that our guys are playing hard right now, but we need to get game experience in that we are such a young team," said veteran Lancer head coach Michael Harris, whose squad has just two seniors — guard Jalen Boswell and forward Eric Shirley. “This is the youngest and most inexperienced team since I have been here.”

Last Friday night at Lee, the Lancers fell to Patriot District opponent Woodson, 73-52. Boswell scored 16 points for Lee, while Maseer Gharab, a junior guard, scored 21 points. Woodson (3-3) had strong games from senior guard John Schoof (18 points) and junior guard Brandon Stepka (13).

One of the Lancers’ strengths early in the season has been its impressive free throw shooting. Through their first two games, Lee had converted 51 of 63 shots (81 percent) from the charity stripe. Harris realizes it’s a long season and said his inexperienced team will get better as the season moves on.

“I think in the long run we’ll be fine as time goes on this season,” said Harris. The Lancers will travel to Richmond on Dec. 28 to play a game against John Marshall High.

This season, Woodson’s has posted wins over Robinson, Fairfax and the Lancers. The Cavaliers’ defeats have come to local private school powers Paul VI and Bishop O’Connell as well as district foe Lake Braddock.

Schoof scored 22 points in Woodson’s season opening 78-67 home win over Robinson on Dec. 1. Mark Now, a junior guard, contributed 12 points and freshman guard Daniel Noe 10 points in that Cava-liers’ victory. For the Rams that night, Mike Rice, a senior forward, scored a game-high 26 points, while teammates Robert Pillow, a junior guard, and Ian Evanschow, a senior guard, scored 18 and 12 points, respectively.

In its home loss to Paul VI, 60-51, on Dec. 3, Schoof led the Cavaliers with 14 points while Andrew Boehler and Stephka both scored nine. Paul VI’s balanced scoring attack consisted of big games from Stan Robinson (16 points, 9 rebounds), Patrick Holloway (15 points), Coleman Johnson (12 points, 7 boards) and Tilman Dunbar (9 points). The Panthers of Paul VI were 4-2 going into this week.

In Woodson’s loss to O’Connell, 69-46, on Dec. 18, Stephka tallied 11 points to pace the Cav’s offense. O’Connell built a 33-20 halftime lead before outscoring Woodson, 17-9, in the third quarter to take total control. Woodson was outscored by just two points in the final quarter.

VISTA Patriots Seek Players

The VISTA Patriots FC, an NCSL U19 (U17, 18, and 19) boys team, is seeking experienced players born on or after Aug. 1, 1991. The team is looking for five or six players to fill some available spots on the team, which is composed of players residing in Northern Virginia from the Centreville, Chantilly, Burke, Manassas, Springfield and the Fairfax Station areas. The Patriots accommodate athletes with multiple commitments. The team has a history of developing players with an emphasis on team play, respect for others and good sportsmanship. The club was nominated and honored twice by the coaches and ODSL officials as winners of the Randy Rawls Sportsmanship Award. Bill Walter, a former collegiate player who holds a USSF National License, coaches the Patriots. Tryouts started Dec. 11-12 and will take place throughout the winter up to the start of the NCSL Spring 2011 season. Players and parents that are looking for a respectful and fun soccer atmosphere for a reasonable time commitment and cost should contact either Jack Dulun, the Patriots Team Manager, at dulang@cox.net; or coach Bill Walter at billybobandktr@aol.com or by phone at 571-259-1000.

Chantilly Classic Offers Best Of High School Basketball

Chantilly High School, over the holidays, will once again host the Pohanka Chantilly Classic Holiday Basketball Tournament. The dates of the event, in its 18th year, will be Tuesday, Dec. 28; Wednesday, Dec. 29; and Thursday, Dec. 30. All games will take place at Chantilly High School, located at 4201 Stringfield Road, in Chantilly.

The Pohanka Classic, which includes both boys’ and girls’ tournaments, is regarded as one of the most storied holiday tournaments in the Washington, D.C. area. This year’s tournament will feature 16 schools from Virginia, Maryland and the District in an exciting and intense three-day chase for the title. Last year’s tournament featured some of the best and most exciting basketball in its history.

Guest opponents will include South County and Hayfield secondary schools. On the boys’ side, the defending Pohanka champion Chantilly Chargers return all Northern Region center John Manning, along with senior teammate Jake Weigand. One of the Chargers’ top obstacles to success this year will be Hayfield, a traditional Northern Virginia powerhouse. Led by long-time California high school coach Ron Palmer, the Hawks bring a relatively new-looking team this season, having to replace all five starters from last year’s team, which didn’t lose until February.

In addition to Chantilly and Hayfield, the boys’ bracket features improving programs South County and Thomas Jefferson (Alexandria), as well as Deep Run and Mills Godwin, traditionally two of the Richmond area’s finest programs. Wilson High School from Washington, D.C. also makes its Pohanka Chantilly Classic debut. Rounding out the boy’s field is Mountain View High School from Stafford.

The girls’ tournament also features an exciting array of teams, such as Northern Region teams Langley and Annandale, and Paul VI of Fairfax. The following schedule is for the opening round games on Tuesday, Dec. 28:

- Georgetown Visitation vs. Loudoun County (girls, 9 a.m.);
- Hylton vs. Annandale (girls, 10:45 a.m.);
- Mills Godwin vs. Paul VI (girls, 12:30 p.m.);
- Mills Godwin vs. Mountain View (boys, 2:15 p.m.);
- Deep Run vs. Wilson High School (D.C.) (boys, 4 p.m.);
- Hayfield vs. South County (boys, 5:45);
- Langley vs. Chantilly (girls, 7:30); and

Charity Bowling on Jan. 30

Fairfax Adult Softball (FAS) hosts a bowling tournament each year, benefitting Northern Virginia Special Olympics and Fairfax County Park Authority field improvements. The 11th annual tournament will be Jan. 30, at the Bowl America Shirley in Alexandria. It is time for Fairfax Adult Softball to solicit raffle prizes and tournament sponsorships in hopes of raising the maximum amount of funds for the Special Olympics. FAS is hoping local companies, organizations and individuals will be kind enough to become a sponsor of the bowling event.

Two types of sponsorships are available to choose from:

- Raffle prize/Goods Sponsorship - FAS conducts a big prize raffle auction at the event. The more raffle items FAS receives, the more tickets are sold and the more money is raised for the Special Olympics. Lane Sponsorship - For just $100, one can sponsor a lane for the FAS event and be a hero for Northern Virginia Special Olympics. The Lane Sponsorships are split into three levels: Spare sponsor for $100, Strike sponsor for $500 and Turkey sponsor for $1,000.

For more information on the Jan. 30 event and sponsorships, contact Christina Pree at the FAS office at: office@fairfaxadultsoftball.com.
